Understanding Alcoholism

LOVEBOUND
Recovering From an Alcoholic Family
By Phyllis Hobe. This autobiographical account offers hard-won wisdom on recovering from the after-effects of living in an alcoholic household. Unlike members of Al Anon and other 12-step groups, however, Hobe does not label ACoAs as "co-dependents" or "enablers"—instead she encourages them to face their legitimate anger and to transcend ACoA status in order to lead full and healthy lives.

JOHN BARLEYCORN
Or, Alcoholic Memoirs
By Jack London with an Introduction by sociologist Clarice Stasz, Ph.D. In this autobiography, one of America's great writers recounts his experiences as an alcoholic—beginning at the age of five. Stasz's introduction offers insight into London's character and drinking with respect to modern theories of alcoholism.
